The Naturesway Carry Wrap is an incredibly versatile product, with a whole host of positions at your disposal. This adaptable carrier can be tailored for any baby on any given day. The most popular position is the 'front facing in', where your baby is nestled in to your torso with their face against your chest, but the possibilities are endless. The design of the Carry Wrap ensures that your baby is not expected to support its own weight before it is ready; their spine is held in its natural curve to give your baby time to develop naturally and comfortably. With a little practise, this simple and time-honoured carrier will become one of your most invaluable purchases.

A content and satisfied baby without tricky props or gadgets.

- Made with 100% organic knit cotton
- Combination of woven and knit fabrics give best of both worlds: woven panel supports baby's back and prevents 'sagging' while the knit is comfortable and accommodating, allowing baby to be put in and out up to three times without retying
- The multitude of positions means it suits every baby's preferences – perfect for babies who like to be upright, without putting the weight load on their spines or groin
- Baby is supported in froggy position, similar to inutero, for the 4th trimester or first 3 months as appropriate to their development
- Holds baby close to your centre of gravity for comfortable wear for longer
- Excellent for fussy and premature babies, who need extra contact for optimal development
- Built in storage pocket means you can store and transport the carrier as a bundle without trailing fabric

Instructions for 'front facing in' position:

1. Hold the wrap across your body with the woven panel at the centre front and the top edge under bust line.

2. Take one length behind you.

3. Bring it over your shoulder.

4. Repeat on the other side - making sure the fabric does not twist.

5. The fabric should form an X across your upper back.

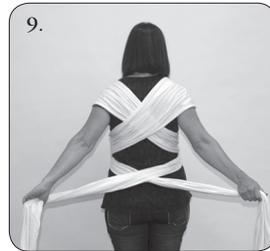

6. Take both fabric lengths in one hand bring them through between the centre front panel and your body.

7. Pull the fabric lengths down firmly - the fabric should form the letter "A".

8. Cross the fabric lengths underneath the front centre panel at navel height.

9. Cross the fabric behind at waist height or higher – whichever feels most comfortable.

10. TIE the wrap at the side using a normal knot.

11. The front fabric cross is where you are going to put baby. For safety practice over a bed for the first time.

12. Place your baby on your shoulder facing towards you and place one leg through.

13. Spread the fabric wide so that baby is secure.

14. Repeat on the other side.

15. Pull the fabric up so that will form a wide 'X' across baby's body.

16. Baby's weight should be evenly distributed on both sides, their bottom level with your navel.

17. Fold the fabric widths on the shoulders up.

18. Tuck baby's legs through the centre front panel on each side. Smaller babies feet can remain tucked under.

19. Pull the centre front panel up over baby's back.

20. The centre front panel should be spread evenly from between baby's knees to just below the shoulders.
